

1

If your child prefers one language over the other, that's okay! Do not pressure your child to speak solely in one language. You can support your child by demonstrating and naming objects in both languages.

2

When labeling items for your child, start by modeling the targeted word in one language first, followed by the other, with a pause in between.

3

Repeat the demonstrated word in both languages once more to reinforce. You can model and label items throughout your child's daily routine activities.

4

Give your child the opportunity to say the targeted word by pausing and waiting. Smile and make it fun!
